PRESIDENT'S REPORT

D. L. Smith, Entomological Society of Manitoba

This year was a year of membership growth for the Entomological Society of Manitoba and the new members who have transferred from other areas and those who have recently joined the entomology profession, are valuable additions to our Society.

In 1972 the Society continued to encourage membership involvement by holding several informal luncheons and one evening smoker during the year. The objective of this year's Scientific Session was to emphasize the importance of economic entomology and the fact that so many speakers attempted to relate their research to actual production situations shows that the objective was met. Insect outbreaks were common in 1972 and information on identification, biology, damage and control was in great demand. This demand will continue and members of our Society should be prepared to make a greater contribution to the public than has been customary in recent years.

I would like to sincerely thank the Executive of the Society who are really the individuals who carry out the many duties that make a group such as ours successful. Thanks also to the membership who supported the activities and projects of the Society and who actively participated in decisions taken at the annual business meeting. Your continued interest in Society affairs will ensure a successful future for this group.

Loschiavo considered that improved attendance at meetings could be obtained if students would listen while other papers are presented since program time is devoted to their papers. Turnock said timing of the meeting to prevent as much interference with classes as possible would help. Randy Barker suggested that students be invited to join the Entomological Society of Manitoba and to attend the Fall Meeting. Brian Ure said that a program of the meeting in advance would be helpful to students to determine what papers would be of greatest interest to them.

Loschiavo - Barker moved that the incoming executive send a letter to each Entomology student inviting him to join the Entomological Society of Manitoba and that notice of meetings be placed in the paper "Graduate Notes" and that the Canada Agricultural Chemicals Association also be notified.

CARRIED

Allen - Turnock moved that the incoming executive give consideration to the possibility of holding the next annual meeting at The University of Manitoba or in the Morquay Building.

CARRIED

Allen - Barker moved that, whereas stored product entomology, animal, and cereal plant protection, and several areas of academic research are receiving reasonably adequate endeavour in Manitoba;

And whereas studies on crop protection for acreages of fresh vegetables and special crops such as field peas, potatoes, sunflowers and sugarbeets receive little or no special attention;

And whereas the total area involved amounts to 153,000 acres and dollar return to growers was $21 million in 1971;

Be it resolved that an Entomology Section at the C.A.R.S., Winnipeg be devoted expressly to develop expertise in appropriate studies on insect ecology and plant protection methods; and that the secretary send copies of this resolution to (1) Director General Research, Canada Agriculture, (2) Deputy Minister, Manitoba Department of Agriculture, (3) Director C.A.R.S., Winnipeg and (4) Vegetable Growers Association of Manitoba.
